

FRONT DOORS CREATE FIRST IMPRESSIONS

The entry of your home is the first area a visitor sees and will make a strong first impression. Will that impression be a positive one or a negative one?

Is the entry area inviting and welcoming or neglected and shabby? Many of us enter our homes directly from the garage or laundry room. As a result, we don't really look at our entry and front door as a visitor would. What kind of first impression is your entry way making?

Your home maybe beautiful, but if that front door is problematic, the negative effects will be obvious. The energy of the entrance includes the approach to the door, the entry way itself, the condition of the door and doorway, and the first room or what you see when walking through the door.

In Feng Shui, the front door is considered the mouth of the home. Chi, or energy, enters the home through this point. Just as the mouth is the entry for nourishment to the body, the door is the point that energy enters to nourish the home.

If the door blocks energy from coming in, the home is suffocated and may create problems in life for you and your family. When you clear your entryway, you will eliminate the blockage. You may notice more energy flowing into your life and positive things happening to you and your family.

Minor defects in your front door can affect you in a negative way. Improvements on your front door can significantly impact your life in a very positive special way. Most front doors and entryways are easy to fix.

Remember, if you improve only one area of your home let it be your door and entryway. We all need to nurture our homes on a regular basis. The effort we put into our homes gives us the positive energy to succeed.